

Psychology's Contributions to Human Rights

April 16 | 9:00-10:00 ET*

Spanish/Portuguese translation provided.

April 22 | 20:00-21:00 ET

Darren Bernal, PhD
American Psychological Association

Tiago Lima, PhD
Brazilian Society of Psychology

Beatriz Torre, MA
Psychological
Association of the Philippines

Maureen O'Connor, PhD
Chair, Task Force on Human Rights, American Psychological Association

Register

April 16: <https://bit.ly/30WnM68>

April 22: <https://bit.ly/3qYjdml>

This webinar, offered twice to accommodate different time zones, will explore the roles that psychologists from around the world can play in promoting human rights. Speakers will discuss how they use psychology to combat racism in the Americas, discrimination against LGBT+ persons in Asia, and socioeconomic inequality in the United States. Participants will learn how they can use their psychological expertise to promote human rights and equity in their countries, expanding the applications of psychological science and practice across the globe.

The first half of the event will be devoted to presentations, and the second to facilitated discussions in breakout rooms.

Participants will be provided a certificate of attendance.

