About the Congress

Founded in 2021, the International Psychology Students Initiative (IPSI) aims to organise academic and social opportunities for any psychology student. IPSI hosted an online three-day Summer Congress in May this year, amassing hundreds of participants across the globe each day. Supporting the notion of advancing psychology internationally, renowned psychologists such as Professor Emeritus Phillip Zimbardo, Professor Emerita Elizabeth Loftus and Professor Roy Baumeister shared their expertise in the Congress.

Observing how the IPSI united international psychology students and created one of the largest psychology congresses, the Psychology Association of the University of Zurich (FAPS) decided to partner with the IPSI. For too long, our opportunities to pursue our interests, connect with other students, and learn from experienced psychologists have been deprived due to the pandemic. To promote intellectual discussions across cultures, nations and identities once again, we now jointly present the 1st Winter Congress of the International Psychology Students Initiative.

Held in a hybrid format, the 1st Winter Congress of the International Psychology Students Initiative will be hosted from 30th January to 3rd February 2023 at the University of Zurich, Switzerland. 300 local students and 70 students from abroad will participate on-site, whilst the number of online participants can be adjusted to at most 30'000. Honoured to have invited full professors and professor emeriti from Switzerland, the United States, the United Kingdom, Asia and Africa, students would not only enjoy professors' engaging presentations, but also have invaluable time to discuss relevant topics with the professors and fellow participants. Various social events are offered to help all participants connect with each other.

Our congress is open to psychology students, as well as any students or academic staff interested in psychology. Therefore, we have created discounted packages of online tickets for universities and higher education colleges. Once purchased, a limited number of participants can use an institution-specific discount code to register for the congress instead of paying the standard price of 29.90 CHF for online participation. Additionally, institutions that purchase our packages will be listed as our congress partners on our website.
